THE ELECTORAL VOTE.

Votes were cast yesterday for President and Vice President in all the states, and Harrison and Morton were formally and constitutionally elected to the office for which they had been preferred by the people on November 6th. They are now President and Vice President-elect beyond any treachery or mishap except the accident of death, and the apprehensions of the weakly suspicious that Mr. Cleveland's friends might buy a sufficient number of electors to re-establish him in the White House or that a diversion might be made to some other Republican statesman can be allayed. And Gen. Harrison can now with perfect propriety talk about his Cabinet.

The votes of the several states were cast as follows:

FOR HARRISON.	FOR CLEVELAND.
Maine.....	6
New Hampshire.....	6
New Jersey.....	6
Yermont.....	6
Massachusetts.....	8
Rhode Island.....	6
New York.....	6
Pennsylvania.....	6
Ohio.....	6
Michigan.....	6
Illinois.....	6
Minnesota.....	6
Wisconsin.....	6
Iowa.....	6
Nebraska.....	6
Kansas.....	6
Colorado.....	6
Nevada.....	6
California.....	6
Oregon.....	6
Total.....	168

It is something of a coincidence that the electoral vote given to Gen. Harrison's grandfather, William Henry Harrison, was 234, or only one more than that cast for the younger Harrison yesterday. The electoral vote, however, was smaller in 1841 than in 1889, and Van Buren's vote was only 60.

New York decides the election with her 36 votes. In 1841 she cast the same number of votes for Mr. Cleveland, and he was elected over Mr. Blaine by a majority of 37. In 1850 she gave Gen. Garfield 35 votes, and he was elected over Gen. Hancock by 59. In 1876 New York gave her 35 votes to Mr. Tilden, and Gen. Hayes was elected without her assistance. She gave 35 votes to Gen. Grant in 1872, but did not decide the contest, as Grant's majority was 150. In 1868 Gen. Grant was elected by 134 majority without the help of New York, whose 33 votes were cast for ex-Gov. Seymour. In 1865 Mr. Lincoln received New York's 33 votes, and was elected over Gen. McClellan by a majority of 192, though 80 Southern votes were not cast. In 1860 New York elected Mr. Lincoln with her 24 votes, as his vote was only 180 in a total of 300. New York also elected Taylor in 1848, Polk in 1844, and Van Buren in 1836. In the latter year she cast 42 votes, the highest number ever reached. In earlier contests her votes had no decisive effect upon the result, though the 26 votes out of her total of 36 cast for John Quincy Adams in 1824 sent the election to the House, where Mr. Adams was elected President through the friendship of Henry Clay, who as the fourth candidate on the electoral list had no constitutional standing in the House. In that year New York cast 1 vote for Jackson, 5 for Crawford and 4 for Clay.

ANOTHER OF HILL'S BLUNDERS.

Judge Marvin of the eighth Judicial district, one of the most learned jurists in the state, referring to Gov. Hill's proposition to make life Senators of ex-Presidents, politely asks the Governor to read Article V. of the United States constitution. If he has read it he has undoubtedly come across this clause: "No state without its consent shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate."

This is a provision which the Governor will find it hard work to wrestle with.

A constitutional amendment of this character could not be adopted without the assent of all the states, instead of the two-thirds vote required for other amendments. And every state, in ratifying the amendment, vote to destroy its equal proportion of representation in the Senate except the two or three so fortunate as to have ex-Presidents living in their midst. At present only Ohio would be benefited. After the 4th of March the District of Columbia would secure a Senator unless Mr. Cleveland transferred his residence from Red Top to one of the states. And after 1892 Indiana would secure a Republican Senator, whose vote would perhaps neutralize that of one of the Democrats from that state, should either happen to be re-elected. The prospects for the Governor are not bright.

Democratic newspapers discover that the Governor made a big and laughable blunder, and are trying to let him down easy by ridiculing his proposal "a mild suggestion." Every Senator in Congress who has been appealed to has scouted it as anti-democratic and mischievous. And now comes the disclosure that it is the one thing that the founders of the constitution guarded against by making an amendment to change the representation impossible except by the individual assent of every state. The Governor is as ignorant of the constitution as he was a year ago of Gov. Young's politics, and more recently of the fact that Middletown is one of the cities of the state.

A HUMILIATING CONFESSION.

In some quarters Secretary Fairchild has been severely criticised for dismissing appraiser McMullen, for so many years connected with the Customs business of the Port of New York. Facts are now being brought to light which show that the Secretary was right in the course he pursued, and that he would be justified in making still more radical changes in the appraiser's office if he were not so systematically misled by the press. It is not enough to indicate that the Government has been defrauded of millions of dollars through the undervaluation of imports.—Utica Observer.

That's it! Now come up and confess your shame. "The government has been defrauded of millions of dollars" under Grover Cleveland's administration. In 1884 the Democratic campaign cries were, "Turn the rascals out!" "Show us the books!" The books were turned over to the Democrats, and weeks and months were spent in searching for Republican rascalities. The result was a discrepancy of one cent in a management of the nation's finances extending over a period of 24 years, and the missing cent was afterwards swept up from the floor of the treasury department, where it had been dropped by a Democratic official.

This business of undervaluation has been carried on for years with the full knowledge of the administration. It has been part of the Democratic system for breaking down the protective principle. Manufacturers complained, for it was destroying their sales, but there was no redress. In the classification of washed wools as waste the fraud was so outrageous that Congress was forced to give attention to the subject. Undervaluations were also secured by false classifications of silks, liquors and other commodities by the score in which fraud was easy. And the man to whom the appeals for correction and for justice were made without effect was none other than the Secretary of the Treasury himself.

Yes, the government has been defrauded of millions of dollars; there is no doubt of it. But the fault is not McMullen's; he has borne an unimpeachable character as an official of the government for thirty six years. He is removed because he chose to keep in office certain Republicans whom he knew he could trust, and who have made the business of undervaluation more difficult to the rascals who secured their positions under the present administration. There is something suspicious in the eagerness at Washington for the removal of McMullen and his honest subordinates now. Are "the very hungry and very thirsty," conscious that they must soon retire from the public crib, preparing for a grand swoop upon the treasury and the gobbling up within the next six weeks of "millions of dollars" more? McMullen is in the way of some scheme of rascality and plunder, there is not the slightest doubt of it.

"The government has been defrauded of millions of dollars" during the four years of Cleveland's administration. This is the testimony of one of the most candid and reliable Democratic newspapers in the state, and one that is owned and directed by one of Mr. Cleveland's Postmasters and a supporter of his policy. The confession is one that should be made a note of. Perhaps it affords a partial explanation of the fact that the government under Mr. Cleveland has cost $95,000,000 more than it did under Garfield and Arthur.

OUTSPOKEN SCIENCE.

The following statement came voluntarily to the proprietors of the great preparation of which it speaks. They have never had the pleasure of meeting the eminent scientist who wrote it, but appreciate the honest candor which prompted it:

"To WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: This may certify that as the result of extended researches I am always able to find in the Duffy Malt Whiskey alone, there is to be had such a pure article as I have described in my paper on 'A Scientific Specimen for Intemperance,' in the North American Review for July, 1888. It is, of course, a well-known fact that we may procure, as a laboratory product, a whiskey that shall be free of food oil, but it is with pride that I state that alone of commercial whiskeys the Duffy Malt declines to injure the brain and the system."

DETAILS OF ACCIDENTS THAT HAVE OCCURRED IN THIS VICINITY.

A Boy Accidentally Shot While Shooting at a Target Near South-Rondout—Two Kingston People Thrown from a Wagon, on Sunday.

"Accidents never come singly."

D. Garvin, living near Delhi, was drowned in the ice of a flume on the Platter Brook, on Friday.

Thomas Heffernan, a blind inmate of the Poughkeepsie Almshouse, stepped off the main-street dock in that City, yesterday, and fell into the Hudson River. He was rescued by Captain L. H. Wood.

W. B. Nixon, Station Agent for the Hudson River Railroad Company at Rte. 10, who was injured about a week ago, by being caught on the throat by a wire clothes line and thrown to the ground, is still confined to his house.

On Sunday Henry Wheeler and Miss J. Myers, of this City, started for Stone Ridge, driving a team of mules. Before reaching Old Hurley the team was away. On turning a sharp corner in that village one of the wheels of the wagon gave way and the occupants were thrown heavily upon the frozen ground. The team ran under a shed at the house of Mr. Wheeler, and Miss Myers was badly bruised.

The report that a boy named Dunn, son of George Dunn, of South-Rondout, had been shot, as stated in last evening's issue of THE FREEMAN, was true. The correspondent of THE FREEMAN there said the following: Nathan H. Dunn and Nathan Cole, cousins of George Dunn, aged respectively 14 and 17 years, went gunning in the little wooded glen south of this place. At about 3 o'clock they were seen seated at the roadside by an acquaintance, who asked them what they were doing there. The boys laughingly replied: "Waiting for squirrels." Later the same acquaintance saw them playing on the side of the hill and called to them to be careful with the gun. Not 10 minutes afterward the report of a gun was heard and a man waving his hand, hearing groans in the direction of an unfinished house, which stands on the brow of the hill back of Captain John Forsyth's residence, ran there and found Nathan H. Dunn on the ground, bleeding from a terrible wound in his breast while Nathan Cole stood over him, prostrate on the ground. "I wish it was me," Miller, such is the man's name, told him to go for a doctor, but the grief-stricken boy raised his gun and broke it against the corner of the house and then fled. Miller procured assistance, and the wounded boy was brought to his home, where George J. Dunn, Doctors J. Hasbrouck, Jr., Keefe and Crispell quickly reached the bedside of the wounded boy, and did all that medical skill could do to relieve his sufferings. For a time he hovered between life and death, but he never regained consciousness. It was believed that the wound was fatal, and that death was imminent. This morning he was resting comfortably, and the symptoms are favorable to his recovery unless pneumonia or blood poisoning sets in. Nathan Cole has not been found, although searching parties were out last night and are still looking for him.

From the Irving Publishing Company, New-York City, THE FREEMAN has received a handsome volume entitled "Twenty-Eight Years in Wall-Street," by Henry Clews. It contains sketches of the lives of the great financiers of the United States, and is richly illustrated with steel and wood cuts. Mr. Clews has performed the literary work artistically. His style is clean cut, vigorous, and he holds the attention of readers from the first page to the last. Further notice hereafter.
